In the early process of the project, Lucy started making several color pallets to decide which colors we were going to use on the site. We ended up deciding to use as main color a light orange. Later, Lucy made a Logo to represent our brand.

Later, due to having several stuffs from school, we could not work until the weekend. But we manage to work in a very efficient way. I started working on a template to use in all the pages with the help of Carlos and Lucy. This helped us to have a full agreement with the footer and header of the page, as well as all the sections it would include. We also split the work.

I got the users section, which included the user information, as well as three paintings from the painter. I got a little problem while doing it because Bootstrap was something completely new for this. But I looked for templates to identify which and how to use the components. Making this really helped me. So, I could make a complete and correct view for the painter.

Later on, I did a index with the information of the 3 painters, using logic from the Painter page.

I think we really worked as a team. Our communication was good, we helped each other if we had any problem with the code, we solved it as a team. I am happy with the work we've done. I would be very happy to work with Lucy and Carlos for next projects.
